About Internet Professional Association (iProA)

iProA is a non-profit making professional organization founded in 1999, with a mission to serve the society through information technology and help to create opportunity for the IT industry. We have over 1,600 members, and the association has become one of the largest IT associations in Hong Kong. Many of our members are CEOs and senior executives from leading information technology enterprises, participating actively in community services and have gained wide recognition in Hong Kong. iProA is well-recognized for its efforts in advocating new IT concepts and serving the community, especially in Digital Inclusion, eHealth as well as the Youth community. We have developed our newest advocacy in Digital Lifestyle, which is going to be one of our largest initiatives in the coming years. We also actively engage in close relationship with associations and different levels of government departments in Mainland China.

Starting from 2004, voting members of iProA who are degree holders with four years or more of working experience in IT fields are eligible to register as individual voters of the IT Functional Constituency in Legco elections.
